Dear Medical Board

Thank you for opportunity to give my opinion.

I do not think this idea has merit.

I believe it will be another costly bureaucratic burden on clinicians designed to protect employers and regulatory bodies.

There are many already such as the CPD requirements, the criminal history checks and others which we are required to submit.

I know of clinicians who have retired earlier than otherwise because of the annoying CPD changes who were assets to the profession and this will probably cause more of the same.

You cannot micromanage every person who may not behave perfectly.

You would be better to put your efforts into educating medical students about their ethical obligation to their patients.
