Thank you for the opportunity to raise our concern on countries that should be considered in their english proficiency.

I would like to submit FIJI as one of those countries as we use english as our only official language taught and used in schools from as early as year 1 (Class 1). For some one to enrol and do further studies in tertiary level should have 12 years of studies in the english language. Our system of education in Fiji from primary up to tertiary will only allow students to climb the next level higher if one passes the current year in most of the subjects with english as one of them.

Thank you.
