After reading the news in the ANJ about AHPRA thinking of giving international students a chance of getting the nursing registration if they score close to what is the expected score then what will happen to the local nursing students, why they are not considered for this change. I think that's unfair with us, the local students who pay so much fees, spend so time studying to get the EEN registration.

I strongly believe that migrants from Fiji who are nursing students here and awaiting their registration should also be considered and waived from the English test.

sincerely yours
