

Shared code of conduct: public consultation

Introduction

The Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health Practice, Chinese Medicine, Chiropractic, Dental, Medical Radiation Practice, Occupational Therapy, Optometry, Osteopathy, Paramedicine, Pharmacy, Physiotherapy and Podiatry Boards of Australia (National Boards) have a shared code of conduct (shared code), most in the same form and some with minor variations.

The National Boards and the Australian Health Practitioner Regulation Agency (Ahpra) are seeking feedback about a proposed revised shared code (revised shared code).

Please ensure you have read the public consultation papers before answering this survey, as the questions are specific to the revised shared code.

Publication of responses

The National Boards and Ahpra publish submissions at their discretion. We generally publish submissions on our websites to encourage discussion and inform the community and stakeholders. Please advise us if you do not want your submission published.

We will not place on our websites, or make available to the public, submissions that contain offensive or defamatory comments or which are outside the scope of the subject of the consultation. Before publication, we may remove personally identifying information from submissions, including contact details.

The National Boards and Ahpra can accept submissions made in confidence. These submissions will not be published on the website or elsewhere. Submissions may be confidential because they include personal experiences or other sensitive information. Any request for access to a confidential submission will be determined in accordance with the Freedom of Information Act 1982 (Cth), which has provisions designed to protect personal information and information given in confidence. The following questions will help us to gather information about the revised shared Code of conduct.

Please ensure you have read the public consultation papers before responding, as the questions are specific to the revised shared code.

The revised shared code includes high-level principles to provide more guidance to practitioners especially when specific issues are not addressed in the content of the code.

Are shorter, more concise principles that support the detail in the revised shared Code preferable or are longer, more comprehensive principles a better option? Why?

The current length of the document seems reasonable. Distinct and careful placement of headings for different aspects would allow a practitioner to arrive at the section/s required for reference.

In the revised shared code, the term 'patient' is used to refer to a person receiving healthcare and is defined as including patients, clients, consumers, families, carers, groups and/or communities'. This is proposed in order to improve readability of the code and to support consistency for the public.

Do you support the use of the term 'patient' as defined for the revised shared code or do you think another term should be used, for example 'client' or 'consumer'? Why or why not?

The term "patient" is acceptable as the code is written for healthcare practitioners who are interacting with individuals requiring direct healthcare.

The revised shared code includes amended and expanded content on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander health and cultural safety that uses the agreed definition of cultural safety for use within the National Registration and Accreditation Scheme. (Section 2 Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander health and cultural safety).

Is this content on cultural safety clear? Why or why not?

This section seems adequate for practice in the way of highlighting the issues and sensitivities of which to be aware.

Q49.

Sections 3.1 Respectful and culturally safe practice, 4.1 Partnership, 4.9 Professional boundaries and 5.3 Bullying and harassment include guidance about respectful professional practice and patient safety.

Does this content clearly set the expectation that practitioners must contribute to a culture of respect and safety for all? e.g. women, those with a disability, religious groups, ethnic groups.

This section seems adequate for practice in the way of highlighting the issues and sensitivities of which to be aware.

Statements about bullying and harassment have been included in the revised shared code (Section 5.3 Bullying and harassment).

Do these statements make the National Boards'/Ahpra's role clear? Why or why not?

Section 5.3 mentions the different forms of bullying and harassment but it does not provide clear statement of when Ahpra should be notified nor the role which Ahpra takes on when a complaint/notification is made. This section could be expanded to provide some basic guidance with these two aspects. This section seems to deal more with workplace bullying and harassment and little guidance for patients when they encounter harassment or bullying.

The revised shared code explains the potential risks and issues of practitioners providing care to people with whom they have a close personal relationship (Section 4.8 Personal relationships).

Is this section clear? Why or why not?

This section is generally clear. However, the document might consider guidance where conflict of interests exists in certain circumstance with friends and family members.

Is the language and structure of the revised shared code helpful, clear and relevant? Why or why not?

The general guidance provided by this shared code of conduct is helpful, generally clear and relevant for professional practice.

The aim is that the revised shared code is clear, relevant and helpful. Do you have any comments on the content of the revised shared code?

While this document is useful and to be shared by all health practitioners registered with the relevant boards under Ahpra, the way the document introduces the subject seems inconsistent. There are 15 boards under Ahpra, but this document is written for 12 professions. It is stated that the code is based on the Medical Board, and the Midwifery and Nursing Board of Australia. There is no mention of the Psychology Board. If this is a shared code of conduct/practice, then all 15 professions have to be mentioned for consistency and fairness. However, it is acceptable that other specific codes are added as supplements/appendices for certain practitioners due to the nature of each of those practices.

Do you have any other feedback about the revised shared code?

Section 11.2 on the treatment of patients who withdraw from research study is unclear. The title is unclear as it does not describe what follows in the next two points. The title should be about patient treatment on withdrawal. A suggestion is to remove the title and to include the two points to the above section in 11.1. Section 8.6 (first para) where it states, "(W)hen a practitioner is contracted by a third party to provide a legal, insurance or other assessment of a person who is not their patient....."; "not their patient" might not be clear in the context of the sentence. It could be rephrased as "...not a patient of the contracted practitioner...".

The National Boards are also interested in your views on the following questions about the potential impacts of the proposed revisions to the shared Code of conduct.

. Would the proposed changes to the revised shared Code result in any adverse cost implications for practitioners, patients/clients/consumers or other stakeholders? If yes, please describe.

We do not believe so.

Would the proposed changes to the revised shared Code result in any potential negative or unintended effects? If so, please describe them.

We do not believe so.

Would the proposed changes to the revised shared Code result in any potential negative or unintended effects for vulnerable members of the community? If so, please describe them.

Would the proposed changes to the revised shared Code result in any potential negative or unintended effects for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Peoples? If so, please describe them.

Unable to comment.

The next two questions are about the Chiropractic Board and its changes to the revised shared code of conduct. They are not relevant to all stakeholders but you are welcome to give feedback if you are interested.

Do you wish to read the questions and provide feedback about the Chiropractic version of the revised shared code?

- No
 Yes

The Chiropractic Board's (the Board) current code of conduct is common to many of the National Boards with the exception that the Board's current code of conduct has minor edits, extra content in its Appendices and additional content relating to modalities.

Many of these expectations relating to the Appendices are referred to more broadly in the revised shared code and/or are largely replicated in other relevant board documents such as the recently revised Guidelines for advertising a regulated health service (Appendix 1) and the FAQ: chiropractic diagnostic imaging (Appendix 2). It is proposed that the appendices and section on modalities be removed and additional guidance on these areas be presented in additional guidelines or similar.

Noting that the principles and expectations in the current appendices and modalities section are addressed broadly in the revised shared code and other relevant documents do you think it is necessary to keep the additional information in the Appendices and modalities section? Why or why not?

. If you think keeping the extra information is necessary, do you support that the information be presented as a guideline, or similar, rather than as an appendix to the revised shared code? Why or why not?

The next question is about the Medical Radiation Practice Board and its current version of the revised shared code of conduct. It is not relevant to all stakeholders but you are welcome to give provide feedback if you are interested. Do you wish to read the questions and provide feedback about the Medical Radiation Practice version of the revised shared code?

- No
 Yes

The Medical Radiation Practice Board's (the Board) current code of conduct is common to many of the National Boards with the exception that the Board's current code has extra content in its Appendix A. Appendix A includes expectations specific to medical radiation practitioners about providing good care, effective communication and radiation protection. Many of these expectations are referred to in the Professional capabilities for medical radiation practice (the capabilities), which set out the minimum skills and professional attributes needed for safe, independent practice in diagnostic radiography, nuclear medicine technology and radiation therapy. The Board is proposing to remove Appendix A from the revised code as the content duplicates content included in other documents such as the capabilities.

Do you think the extra information in Appendix A should be presented in a guideline or similar, noting that the expectations specific to medical radiation practitioners are referred to in the capabilities? Why or why not?

Q24.

Thank you!

Thank you for participating in the public consultation.

Your answers will be used by the National Boards and Ahpra to improve the proposed revised shared Code of conduct.
